

To: Brent Lewis[b1lewis@blm.gov]
Cc: Way, Steven[way.steven@epa.gov]
From: Kraus, Alan
Sent: Wed 5/18/2016 7:22:09 PM
Subject: odd container
13225152\_10156924013100475\_1061083152\_o \(1\).jpg
ultra hardtop containment.jpg

I got some additional information. The container is at a private residence. The former resident (deceased) was a retired Sandia Labs employee who had a habit of taking stuff home - hence the suggestion that it might have come from Sandia Labs. There is a series of numbers stenciled on the container but they don't offer an obvious clue - at least Google didn't know!
It doesn't look like it's stainless steel to me but I'm not sure that it isn't.

Jaime tells me the current owner of the property is going to call Sandia Labs and see if they would take a look at it. I've asked him to keep me posted. I figure I could use the photos and identity in my yearly hazwoper-awareness level refresher as examples of containers of unknown materials.

If your're curious, I can keep you posted.

Alan